Alabama	M	1995	1975 Code of Alabama, Section 16-6B-2(h); 1995 Accountability Law, Act 95-313	The 1975 Code of Alabama mandates that ten minutes per day of character education are required for all K-12 students. The 1995 Accountability Law mandates character education. On April 20, 2001, Executive Order No. 50 was passed, establishing the Alabama Advisory for Safe Schools. A 2005 program provides every fourth grade student in Alabama with state-sponsored access to STAR Sportsmanship - a web-based character and sportsmanship education program created by Learning Through Sports. The Alabama Department of Education provides funding for the sportsmanship education program through CLAS (Council for Leaders in Alabama Schools).	"The State Board of Education and all local boards shall develop and implement...a comprehensive character education program for all grades to consist of not less than ten minutes instruction per day focusing upon the students' development of the following character traits: Courage, patriotism, citizenship, honesty, fairness, respect for others, kindness, cooperation, self-respect, self-control, courtesy, compassion, tolerance, diligence, generosity, punctuality, cleanliness, cheerfulness, school pride, respect for the environment, patience, creativity, sportsmanship, loyalty, and perseverance. Each plan of instruction shall include the Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag" (1995 Accountability Law). Alaska	M	1998 2006	Alaska Character Education (ACE) Partnership; Statute Section 14.33.200 Alaska	To develop strategies for implementing character education in Alaska, the Alaska Department of Education, Association of Alaska School Boards (AASB) and Alaska Parent Teachers Association (AKPTA) jointly sponsor the Alaska Character Education (ACE) Partnership. Through the efforts of the ACE partners, character education programs are being established in Alaska. Building on the Quality Schools Initiative, Alaska's plan for school reform, the Alaska Character Education Partnership features content related to Alaska's citizenship and healthy life skills standards, quality professional development, community involvement, and support for the school excellence standards.	"(a) By July 1, 2007, each school district shall adopt a policy that prohibits the harassment, intimidation, or bullying of any student. Each school district shall share this policy with parents or guardians, students, volunteers, and school employees. (b) The policy must be adopted through the standard policy-making procedure for each district that includes the opportunity for participation by parents or guardians, school employees, volunteers, students, administrators, and community representatives. The policy must emphasize positive character traits and values, including the importance of civil and respectful speech and conduct, and the responsibility of students to comply with the district's policy prohibiting harassment, intimidation or bullying. The policy must also include provisions for an appropriate punishment schedule up to and including expulsion and reporting of criminal activity to local law enforcement authorities. School employees, volunteers, students, and administrators shall adhere to this policy." Arkansas	M	1997	Act 631 of 1997	Act 631 of 1997 mandates character education in all school districts for the state of Arkansas.	"The General Assembly finds and acknowledges that, while character and citizenship is primarily a parental responsibility, it must not remain isolated there. The General Assembly further finds that character and citizenship education must be strengthened in public school to prepare young people for positive dealings with the social order of today. The Director of the General Education Division of the Department of Education shall provide a clearinghouse for information on nonsectarian practices in character and citizenship education programs within Arkansas and across the nation in order to assist local schools to strengthen character and citizenship education as a local option for school district curriculum in kindergarten through grade twelve (K-12). The director shall ensure that information on nonsectarian practices and models is disseminated to all school districts in the state... During each interim of the biennium, the director shall provide a progress report on the implementation and effectiveness of this act" (Act 631 of 1997). California	M	2000	California Education Code Section 233.5(a) [formerly named Section 44806] and Section 44790.3 Assembly Bill 2028 of 2000	The state of California mandates character education in their Education Code and provides a character education manual for every teacher in the state. In 2000, Assembly Bill 2028 encouraged the State Board of Education to survey school boards and county offices on their need for instructional materials which foster character development and to report these findings to the State Board. In 2007, a resolution established the month of October as "Character Education Month" in California.	"Each teacher shall endeavor to impress upon the minds of the pupils the principles of morality, truth, justice, patriotism, and a true comprehension of the rights, duties, and dignity of American citizenship, and the meaning of equality and human dignity, including the promotion of harmonious relations, kindness toward domestic pets and the humane treatment of living creatures, to teach them to avoid idleness, profanity, and falsehood, and to instruct them in manners and morals and the principles of a free government. Each teacher is also encouraged to create and foster an environment that encourages pupils to realize their full potential and that is free from discriminatory attitudes, practices, events, or activities, in order to prevent acts of hate violence..." (California Education Code Section 233.5(a)) -- "The legislature finds and declares that there is a compelling need to promote the development and implementation of effective educational programs in ethics and civic values in California schools in kindergarten and grades 1 to 12" (Section 44790.3). Colorado	E	2001	Section 1, Article 29 of House Bill 01-1292 of 2001 "Caring Communities Builds Character" partnership	In 2001, Governor Bill Owens signed into law House Bill 01-1292, which "strongly encourages" school districts to develop and strengthen character education programs.	Legislation: "While parents are the primary and most important moral educators of their children, such efforts should be reinforced in the school and community environments. The General Assembly further finds that research indicating that core character qualities such as family support, community involvement, positive peer influence, motivation to achieve, respect for person and property, common courtesy, conflict resolution, integrity, honesty, fairness, a sense of civil and personal responsibility, purpose, and self-respect help give youth the basic interpersonal skills and attributes that are critical building blocks for successful relationships... Each school district, either individually or through a board of cooperative services, is strongly encouraged to establish a character education program designed to help students cultivate honesty, respect, responsibility, courtesy, respect for and compliance with the law, integrity, respect for parents, home, and community, and the dignity and necessity of a strong work ethic, conflict resolution, and other skills, habits, and qualities of character that will promote an upright, moral, and desirable citizenry and better prepare students to	Pending response from Jim Olmstead	Jim Olmstead, Director of Strategic Partnerships, The Foundation for Character Development, 6116 Misty Way, Longmont, CO 80503 Tel (303) 410- 1522, Cell (303) 587- 4038, ethics@ffcd.us; www.FFCD.us

Delaware	E	2000	HJR 9 of 2000: Title 14, Delaware Code 4112D 2008 (Bullying Prevention Law)	In 2000, Delaware's Legislature recognized the state as a "State of Character" and urged citizens to promote character in schools, businesses, homes, churches and other places. The state signed a Bullying Prevention Law into effect in 2008 which includes many of the same principles as character education. Legislation enacted during the 1994-95 school year and generous resources support school-based intervention programs that positively effect school climate, discipline and safety. While schools are using resources to implement character education, legislators intentionally avoided using the specific term "character education" due to past objections to the term "values education." In May, 2001, Delaware hosted it's first Character Rally, a two-day event founded by Junior Achievement of Delaware to provide a fundamental understanding of ethics and the importance of building character in the lives of youth. More than 5,000 eighth graders attended. In 2003 Governor Minner declared that	"The District is committed to support each school in their adoption of a school-wide bully prevention Program. This forum included references to character education and CEP. Previously, the District of Columbia received a federal grant through "The Partnerships in Character Education Project Program" to implement character education programs from 2000-2005, but research has not yielded any more information. The grant aimed to help "design a reform model to connect character-building content and instructional strategies with existing curriculum standards, and to improve overall school climate" for 11 DCPS schools, serving 6,926 students (six elementary schools, two middle/junior high schools, and three senior high schools located in each of the District of Columbia's eight Wards). Florida	M	1999	House Bill 365 of 1999 (Florida Statutes Sections 233.061 and 230.2316 amended) Senate Bill 20E of 2002	The 1998 Florida Legislature first authorized character education instruction in elementary schools. In 1999, House Bill 365 amended Florida Statutes, Section 233.061, requiring that a character-development program be provided in elementary schools, and that the program be similar to Character First or Character Counts. The statute requires programs to be secular in nature and stress such character qualities as attentiveness, patience, and initiative. Also amended in 1999 was Florida Statutes, Section 230.2316, requiring all dropout prevention and academic intervention programs to provide character development and law education. In 2002, Florida Legislature's passage of Senate Bill 20E required a character-development program in kindergarten through grade 12 beginning in the 2004-2005 school year. The State of Florida Advisory Committee on Character Education (SACCE), established in 1999, assists school districts in responding to the mandated character education initiatives.	"Each district school board shall develop or adopt a curriculum for the character-development program that shall be submitted to the department for approval. The character-development curriculum shall stress the qualities of patriotism, responsibility, citizenship, kindness, respect, honesty, self-control, tolerance, and cooperation" (Senate Bill 20E of 2002). Georgia	M	1997	Title 20, Chapter 2, Article 6 of the Official Code of Georgia amended with 20-2-145	In 1997, legislation required character education based on 27 traits centering around citizenship, respect for others, and respect for self. This character curriculum became part of the Georgia Quality Core Curriculum Standards required in elementary, middle schools, and high schools in the state.	"The State Board of Education shall develop by the summer of the 1997-1998 school year a comprehensive character education program for levels K-12. This comprehensive character education program shall be known as the 'character curriculum' and shall focus on the students' development of the following character traits: courage, patriotism, citizenship, honesty, fairness, respect for others, kindness, cooperation, self-respect self-control, courtesy, compassion, tolerance, diligence, generosity, punctuality, cleanliness, cheerfulness, school pride, respect for the environment, respect for the creator, patience, creativity, sportsmanship, loyalty, perseverance, and virtue. Local boards may implement such a program at any time and for any grade levels, and the state board shall encourage the implementation of such plan. All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are repealed" (Official Code of Georgia, Annotated 20-2-145a in 2002). Hawaii	S	2005	Board Policy 2101 of 1997; Redesignated as Board Policy 2109 on 11/03/05	The Hawaii Legislature adopted character education as policy in 2001, but the bill was carried over to the 2002 legislative session. As of late, the bill has been neither passed nor vetoed. If passed, this bill would require schools to teach character education. In 2005, the State Board of Education designated Board Policy 2109, supporting character education an effective and valuable teaching resource.	"In Hawaii, the Board of Education has adopted character education as a policy...The purpose of this Act is to require public schools to teach character education in grades kindergarten through 12." Section 302A will be amended as follows: "Instruction in character education. The department shall require all public schools to instruct students in kindergarten through grade twelve, in character education. Schools shall design activities, including using the department's curriculum models on character education, to incorporate six elements of character: caring, civic virtue and citizenship, justice and fairness, respect, responsibility, and trustworthiness" (House Bill 437 of 2001). "The vitality and viability of our democratic way of life are dependent on all students developing into responsible and caring citizens who respect themselves, others, and the world in which they live. Character education is the process through which students are provided opportunities to learn and demonstrate democratic principles and core ethical values such as civic responsibility, compassion, honesty, integrity, and self-discipline" (Board Policy 2109 of 2005). Louisiana	E	1998	House Bill 102 of 1998 Bulletin 741	In 1998, the Louisiana Legislature voted to require that the Department of Education establish a character education clearinghouse and distribute information to all districts on various character education nonsectarian practices, models and potential funding sources. The law states that any city or parish school system may offer a character education curriculum, but does not require them to do so, effectively permitting parish school boards to offer character education curricula. The state's role as an information disseminator is clearly defined, as no single program or set of character traits are included. Additionally, a 1999 bill requires that students address all school employees as "ma'am" or "sir." This "school manners" law was the first to be passed in the country and it has led to other states considering similar legislation.	"Districts shall develop a character education philosophy and implementation plan consistent with locally developed curriculum" (Bulletin 741). Any city or parish school system may offer a nonsectarian character education curriculum pursuant to the provisions of the Section in kindergarten through grade twelve, which focuses on the development of character traits such as honesty, fairness, respect for self and others, or other character traits as determined by individual school communities... The State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education shall provide a clearinghouse for information on nonsectarian practices in character education programs within Louisiana and across the nation in order to assist public elementary and secondary schools in improving character education. Clearinghouse information shall include information about comprehensive character education programs or curricula, which focus on the development of character traits such as honesty, fairness, and respect for self and others." Maine	E	1999	Title 20-A of Maine Statutes, Section 254.11. (Added to Statutes as Chapter 351 in 1999) and "Personal and Global Stewardship" section of the 1997 Learning Results passed by the Maine Legislature	Title 20-A, Section 254.11 of the Maine Statutes (passed in 1999 and amended from 1821 Maine Law) established "Statewide Standards for Behavior." These standards call for the teaching and modeling of values that will result in educating successful students of good character. The importance of character is implied throughout the language of Maine's Common Core , as well as in academic standards of learning formally adopted by the Maine Legislature in 1997.	"In consultation with organizations representing school boards, school administrators, teachers, parents and other interested local officials and community members, the Commissioner shall develop statewide standards for responsible and ethical student behavior. The standards must require annual reporting of incidents of violent and harmful behavior by or against students to the department by school administrative units. The department shall provide forms for reporting" (Title 20-A of Maine Statutes, Section 254.11). "Responsible citizenship requires awareness and a concern for oneself, others, and the environment. It involves interactions not only within the self and family, but between the self and friends, the community, the nation, and the world. It includes the knowledge and care of all dimensions of our selves as humans, an understanding of the group process, and a willingness to exercise the rights and responsibilities of citizenship" (1997 Learning Results, Maine Legislature). Maryland	E	1979	SH 122 of 1979: Governor's Commission on Values Education; Maryland Code, Section 7-304 (House Bill 1495 of 2006)	The Maryland Legislature introduced Senate Bill 737 in 2000 to mandate that all Maryland public schools develop curricula to teach character education, but the bill was not passed. However, state legislation does encourage character education. In 1979, a resolution established the Governor's Commission on Values Education. This Commission had 51 recommendations which encouraged local school systems to adopt the state's citizen and character objectives as their own, and to begin action immediately with existing resources. Though this commission was disbanded after the completion of their report in 1983, all 24 local school systems have worked since then to integrate character education into their curricula. Maryland was the first state to appoint a statewide character education coordinator. In 2006, Section 7-304 of the Maryland Code was amended to alter the standard by which a county board of education and the Board of School Commissioners of Baltimore City must require certain elementary schools to implement a positive behavioral intervention and support program.	Maryland's Commission on Values Education lists the following goals. Character objectives: integrity and honesty; duty to self, family, school, and community; self-esteem; respect for the rights of all persons; recognition of the rights of others to express differing views; sense of justice; compassion for others; discipline and pride in one's work; respect for one's property and the property of others; and courage. Citizenship objectives: patriotism; democracy; understanding of global societies; respect for the rule of law; respect for authority at the local and national levels; allegiance to democratic systems of government; importance of an independent court system; and acceptance of citizenship responsibilities. "The purpose of this section is to require each county board of education to provide a continuum model of prevention and intervention activities and programs that encourage and promote positive behavior and reduce disruption" (Maryland Code, Section 7-304).	Paula McCoach, Character Education Specialist, Maryland State Department of Education, Division of Student, Family and School Support, Youth Development Branch, 200 West Baltimore Street, Baltimore, MD 21201 Tel (410) 767-0047 Fax (410) 333-8010 pmccoach@msde.state.md.us http://www.marylandpublicschools.org/MSDE/divisions/studentschoolsvcs/youth_development/character_ed.htm	Barbara Luther, Consultant, Maryland Center for Character Education, Tel (703) 729-2912 bbluther@smartneighorhood.net
Massachusetts	D	1999	"A Foundation for Citizenship Through Character Education" partnership	In 1999, the Department of Education sponsored a conference on character education entitled, "Cultivating Character and Civility through the Curriculum Frameworks." This was the first in a series of initiatives in character education sponsored by the state. From 2000-2005, the Department of Education formed a partnership with Boston Public Schools (BPS), Hampshire Educational Collaborative (HEC), Center for the Advancement of Ethics and Character at Boston University (CAEC), and Lynch School of Education at Boston College. "A Foundation for Citizenship Through Character Education" brought together rural and urban school districts from across the state to develop critically needed and timely educational curricula to incorporate a K-12 character education initiative in rural districts of Western Massachusetts and in urban Boston. This pilot project aimed to provide a replicable model for schools that educate rural and/or urban youth, and that educate student populations that are diverse with respect to age, grade levels, and a host of other demographics.	N/A	Richard M. Michigan	E	2004	2004 Michigan State Board of Education Policy on Quality Character Education; Senate Resolution 168 of 2008	In 2004, the Michigan State Board of Education designed a policy on quality character education. They recommended that the Eleven Principles be adopted, implemented and evaluated in all public schools in the state. Michigan identifies 6 traits on which to focus character education: responsibility, trustworthiness, respect, fairness, caring, and citizenship. Currently, four schools are participating in a comprehensive pilot program of the Michigan Model Character Education Partnership project. In March 2008, the Michigan Legislature approved a resolution to encourage school districts to adopt and implement character education programs that address bullying.	"The Michigan State Board of Education believes that there are two important reasons to teach character education in public schools. First, the well being of a democratic society requires the civic engagement of ethical citizens...Second, character education helps students learn" (2004 Michigan State Board of Education Policy on Quality Character Education). "Standards for student behavior must be set to produce an atmosphere that encourages students to grow in self-discipline. Character education programs include an anti-bullying curriculum that teaches students how to recognize and react to bullying as well as to develop character traits that reinforce self-discipline...therefore... we encourage school districts to adopt and implement character education programs that address the causes of and remedies to bullying" (Senate Resolution 168 of 2008). Minnesota	E	2005	Minnesota Statutes 120B.232 House Bill 4162 of 2006	The Minnesota Department of Education supports districts' character education initiatives upon request. Minnesota Statutes encourage districts to integrate or offer character education programs encompassing qualities including truthfulness, respect for authority, self-discipline and respect for others; authorizes the use of available federal funds for these programs; and allows districts to accept private funding. In addition, a 2006 bill created a pilot program to allow school districts to receive money for purchasing character education curricula. In this bill, the commissioner of education was required to maintain a list of character education curriculum providers during the one-year grant period of 2006. Currently, the Minnesota Department of Education maintains a Web page that shares character education information and links, but does not specify providers.	"The legislature encourages districts to integrate or offer instruction on character education including, but not limited to, character qualities such as attentiveness, truthfulness, respect for authority, diligence, gratefulness, self-discipline, patience, forgiveness, respect for others, peacemaking, and resourcefulness. Instruction should be integrated into a district's existing programs, curriculum, or the general school environment. The commissioner shall provide assistance at the request of a district to develop character education curriculum and programs...The commissioner must first use federal funds for character development education programs to the extent available...Districts may accept funds from private and other public sources for character development education programs developed and implemented under this section" (Minnesota Statutes, 120B.232). Mississippi	E	1999	Senate Bill 2121 of 1999	In 1999, Mississippi passed a bill encouraging, but not requiring, character education in all K-12 public schools. In addition to encouraging focus on specific character traits, the bill amended the Mississippi Code of 1972 to require teachers to have all pupils say the Pledge of Allegiance and the pledge of the state of Mississippi at least once each month. However, the law specifically states that no pupil with a religious or conscientious objection shall be required to say these pledges.	"The local school boards of the public school districts of this state are hereby authorized, in their discretion, to develop and implement...a comprehensive program for character education in Grades K-12. This program of character education shall focus on students' development of the following character traits: courage, patriotism, citizenship, honesty, pride in quality work, fairness, respect for and obedience to the law, respect for others, kindness, cooperation, self-respect, self-control, courtesy, compassion, diligence, generosity, punctuality, cleanliness, cheerfulness, school pride, respect for the environment, patience, creativity, sportsmanship, loyalty and perseverance..." Missouri	S	1988	CHARACTERplus organization	CHARACTERplus (formally known as PREP) was founded in 1988 by parents, educators, and business leaders to advance character education as an integrated, essential part of learning. In 1993, the concept of CHARACTERplus led to the establishment of Character Education Partnership (CEP) in Washington, DC. The U.S. Department of Education awarded CHARACTERplus a four-year grant in 1997 to spread character education throughout Missouri. Upon completion of this grant in 2001, the Missouri State Legislature voted to continue supporting this initiative by providing state funding. Currently, CHARACTERplus serves more than 700 schools, reaching 25,000 teachers and more than 360,000 students in Missouri, Illinois, and Kansas. Services include trainings, resources, collegial meetings, scholarships to conferences, and community collaboratives that focus on character and moral development, ethics, literacy, service learning, bully &amp; sexual harassment prevention &amp; intervention, etc. It is now the nation's largest community-wide response to character education.	N/A	Joan Krusor Davis, State Coordinator, Missouri Character Education Project, 301 Sherry Lane, Branson, MO 65616, Tel (417) 334-1188  krusordavis@earthlink.net;  http://www.characterplus.org/default.asp  or  Liz Gibbons, Director, CHARACTERplus, 1460 Craig Road, St. Louis, MO 63146 Tel (314) 692-9728 Fax (314) 692-9788  lgibbons@csd.org;  www.characterplus.org	Steven Suess, CHARACTERplus, Tel (314) 401-6252  suessfamily@yahoo.com
Montana	S	2005	Senate Joint Resolution 12 of 2005, Montana Board of Public Education and Montana's Character Education Project (HR2)	In 2005, the Montana Board of Public Education approved a policy that requires all Montana school districts to implement bullying, intimidation, and harassment prevention policies and to proactively address bullying prevention. A list of suggested measures was provided to districts, as well as an accountability mechanism. The policy is located at ARM 10.55.701(3)(g) and ARM 10.55.801. Also, Montana's Character Education Project strives to promote American Indian academic achievement in Montana through the effective use of character education. This HR2 grant project is unique in that it focuses on the values and cultural traditions of Montana tribes and is particularly effective in districts with American Indian student populations and/or multi-cultural backgrounds. Currently, 10 Montana school districts with significant American Indian student populations participate in this project.	The HR2 model promotes..."school leadership directing and modeling the reform by promoting, reinforcing, and encouraging the incorporation of character education in all programs, discipline and activities; creation of a positive and inclusive school climate; development of a sense of school and community belonging; promotion of community/parental involvement; alignment of activities to educational research and the underlying principles of character education; use of culturally relevant curriculum and activities...implementation of non-punitive, redirected behavioral strategies promoting positive student behavior..." (Montana's Character Education Project). Schools and districts are encouraged to "...provide students with learning opportunities through community service; offer extracurricular activities that provide for involvement in the school and community; and encourage student participation in school governance" (Senate Joint Resolution 12 of 2005).	Madalyn Quinlan, Chief of Staff, Montana Office of Public Instruction, PO Box 202501, Helena, MT 59620-2501  mqinlan@mt.gov  phone: 406-444-3168	N/A

Nebraska	M	1996	Nebraska Statutes, Chapter 79, Sections 725, 726, and 727	In 1927, Nebraska introduced legislation defining the schools' role in character education. Nevada	D	2002	Nevada Character Education Project (NCEP), Nevada Department of Education	From 2002-2006, the Nevada Character Education Project (NCEP) received a grant to partner with the Nevada Department of Education, the Washoe School District, the Nevada Attorney General's Office and WestEd. The project included the design, development and implementation of an effective character education program to teach values such as caring, civic virtue and citizenship, justice and fairness, respect, responsibility and trustworthiness to students. A comprehensive literature review of best practices in character education was conducted and guided by the Eleven Principles . Participants utilized Nevada state standards adopted by the Nevada Council as a vehicle to embed character education into daily lessons. In the 2007, character education was included in the "Discretionary Grants-Unrestricted (B/A 2706)" category of Nevada's education programs. New Hampshire	D	1993	House Bill 1162 of 2004	In 1993, New Hampshire established a values program for its teachers. A new state rule required educators who desired recertification to complete five hours of instruction in character and citizenship education. (These hours were included in the 50 hours of professional development that teachers must accumulate every three years to maintain certification.) To provide technical assistance in meeting this new rule, the New Hampshire Department of Education formed an advisory group of professionals from school districts, teachers unions, principals associations, and teacher education programs. This group now encompasses staff development committees, regional workshop centers, and liaisons with national character education organizations. In 1995, the state received a Safe and Drug Free Schools and Communities Grant to address the occurrence of violent incidences on school grounds. In 2004, House Bill 1162 amended RSA 193-F, the Pupil Safety and Violence Prevention Law, to require that school boards have a safety and violence prevention policy.	"Each local school board shall adopt a pupil safety and violence prevention policy which addresses pupil harassment, also known as "bullying", and which is consistent with the provisions of this chapter...Any school employee, or employee of a company under contract with a school or school district, who has witnessed or has reliable information that a pupil has been subjected to insults, taunts, or challenges, whether verbal or physical in nature, which are likely to intimidate or provoke a violent or disorderly response that violates the school bullying policy shall report such incident to the principal, or designee, who shall in turn report the incident to the superintendent and the school board" (House Bill 1162 of 2004). New Jersey	S	2000	New Jersey Character Education Partnership (NJCEP) Initiative; Executive Order Number 9 of 2002; Senate Bill 1749 of 2006; N.J.A.C. 6A: 16-7.6	In 2000, the Governor established the New Jersey Character Education Partnership (NJCEP) Initiative. The purpose of this initiative is to assist public school educators in adopting character education programs that will meet the developmental needs of students by promoting pro-social student behaviors and creating a caring, disciplined school climate conducive to learning. The Governor's FY 2003 budget provided $4.75 million to public school districts, charter schools and state facilities to support character education program development and implementation during the 2002-03 school year. In 2002, the governor of New Jersey signed an executive order which established The New Jersey Character Education Commission. This commission now reviews best practices for character education and sets forth options for communities and school districts to undertake the development of community-based character education programs. In 2006, Senate Bill 1749 required boards of education to offer elementary school students instruction in gang violence prevention. Additionally, N.J.A.C. mandates that each district school board must set a	"The Commission shall consider programs that: teach students the importance of character traits such as integrity, fairness, respect, responsibility, and citizenship; incorporate character education through the existing curriculum; create schools that are safe; create classroom environments that promote effective learning and encourage students to respect one another; teach students how to solve conflicts fairly and respectfully without resorting to intimidation or violence; develop leadership skills and offer students opportunities to serve others; and engage parents and the entire community in cooperative efforts to build and model good character" (Executive Order Number 9, 2002). "Each board of education that operates an educational program for elementary school students shall offer instruction in gang violence prevention and in ways to avoid membership in gangs" (Senate Bill 1749 of 2006). "Each district board of education shall develop, adopt and implement a code of student conduct which establishes standards, policies and procedures for positive student development and student behavioral expectations on school grounds, including on a school bus or at school-sponsored functions, and, as appropriate, for conduct away from school grounds... The code of student conduct shall be based on parent, student and community involvement which represents, where possible, the composition of the schools and community... New Mexico	E	1994	Character Counts! New Mexico; New Mexico Standards for Excellence, 6.30.2.8	In 1994, approximately 30 community leaders formed Character Counts! New Mexico in Albuquerque. The Council has organized itself into both standing and ad hoc work groups to develop plans to broaden Character Counts! in New Mexico. Section 6.30.2.8 of the New Mexico Standards of Excellence, passed in 1996, identified the personal qualities of individuals that New Mexico schools and communities should recognize and promote in character education to achieve student success as responsible, productive, and caring citizens. In 2004, the US Department of Education awarded funds to a new venture - The New Mexico Character Education Partnership - which brought together the New Mexico Public Education Department, Albuquerque Public Schools and NM School districts/charter schools in a project to build statewide leadership for sustainable character education in New Mexico. The partnership funded 30 three-year projects to establish character education in schools and communities in the following core values: trust, respect, responsibility, fairness, caring and citizenship.	"New Mexico schools and communities recognize and promote character education as a means to achieve student success as responsible, productive, and caring citizens. New Mexico high school graduates will become successful, productive members of their communities, the nation, and the world by acquiring the qualities to: learn and perform at their full potential as well as appreciate and develop individual creativity; exhibit a positive self-concept; accept personal responsibility; make decisions which promote good health; respect themselves, others, and the environment; respect the democratic principles, authority, responsibilities, and privileges guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution and its amendments; and understand the importance of honesty, dependability, integrity, and hard work" (New Mexico Standards for Excellence, 6.30.2.8). This document included character trait inventories, character education needs assessments, and sample lesson plans for the classroom. In FY1999 and FY2000, the Ohio General Assembly appropriated $1,050,000 for grants of up to $50,000 for schools/districts to be used for character education. In 2002, H.C.R 28 (a concurrent resolution) urged the citizens of Ohio to encourage positive leadership and youth character qualities. It designated Ohio as a "State of Character" and requested that Congress take action to promote character education. Currently, Ohio Partners in Character Education (OPCE), with the Department of Education, facilitates character education programs in Ohio schools and communities and provides professional development, advocacy, a statewide character network, and the Ohio Schools of Character Awards. Current social studies academic content standards also include character education. Rhode Island	E	1997	House Resolution 387 of 1997 RI 2008 Public Laws, Chapter 08-220 (H7569 Sub A)	In 1997, House Resolution 387 endorsed the implementation of character development education in Rhode Island public schools. In 2000, the US Department of Education and the Rhode Island Department of Education jointly funded a pilot character development program called "Healthy Schools! Healthy Kids!" The program was built on the principles of social and emotional learning and the incorporation of current state and local reform efforts. The Rhode Island Character Education Partnership (RICEP) is currently engaged in a learning and planning year of a three year grant award. Years two and three will support the implementation of objectives in professional development, curriculum revisions, students' character development, parent and community involvement and support, promotion and recognition, and replication of RICEP programs throughout the state. RICEP maintains that here is no single formula for character education programs. They do use CEP's 11 Principles of Character Education as a guide for program design and implementation. The RI jointly funded pilot character development program ended in 2003. The RI Department of Education and	"Whereas, it is the mission of the Rhode Island public schools to provide all learners with the skills and knowledge needed to become successful, productive, and responsible members of society; now, therefore, be it resolved, that the Rhode Island General Assembly recognize that character education is one of those needed skills, and, therefore, endorse character education as an integral part of the teaching and learning process in the Rhode Island public schools; character education is defined as being based on eight key values: trustworthiness, respect, responsibility, fairness, caring, love of country, civic duty, and work ethic; and be it further resolved that no character development program in a public school shall undermine traditional religious values or lawful parental authority...[The Rhode Island Department of Elementary and Secondary Education will] encourage all public schools in Rhode Island to include character education as one of the features of their strategic plans and to adopt a statement of goals and objectives for character education" (House Resolution 387 of 1997). South Carolina	M	2000	South Carolina Code, Section 59-17-135 (Amended from 1976 Code)	In 1996, the State Department of Education received a four-year federal grant for design of a long-term plan and infrastructure development for character education programs. As the federal grant was concluding, the General Assembly passed the South Carolina Family Respect Act in 2000 and appropriated $265,000 for character education in the Department of Education. This act mandated that each local school board develop a policy addressing character education and required that both policy and resulting programs be evaluated. In 2005, the South Carolina General Assembly passed comprehensive legislation to develop career clusters for students and increase high school graduation rates. Revising the code from the Family Respect Act, the legislature passed the South Carolina Education and Economic Development Act. In Section 59-17-135 of the South Carolina Code, this amended code outlined twenty-four character traits to be addressed in character education programs implemented by local school boards of South Carolina.	"Each local school board of trustees of the State must develop a policy addressing character education. Any character education program implemented by a district as a result of an adopted policy must, to the extent possible, incorporate character traits including, but not limited to, the following: respect for authority and respect for others, honesty, self-control, cleanliness, courtesy, good manners, cooperation, citizenship, patriotism, courage, fairness, kindness, self-respect, compassion, diligence, good work ethics, sound educational habits, generosity, punctuality, cheerfulness, patience, sportsmanship, loyalty, and virtue. Local school boards must include all sectors of the community, as referenced in subsection (A)(4), in the development of a policy and in the development of any program implemented as a result of the policy. As part of any policy and program developed by the local school board, an evaluation component must be included" (South Carolina Code, Section 59-17-135(B), amended). Texas	E	2001	House Bill 946 of 2001/Texas Education Code, Section 29.906	In 2001, the Texas Legislature passed House Bill 946, which permits school districts to implement character education programs for students. Programs offered under Texas Education Code, Section 29.906 must meet the following criteria: stress positive character traits as outlined in the bill; use integrated teaching strategies; and be age appropriate. Districts are also required to consult with parents of students, educators, and members of the community, including community leaders, in selecting a character education program. The bill does not require or authorize the proselytization or indoctrination of any specific religious or political belief. The Texas Education Agency is required to maintain a list of character education programs that meet the above criteria. Every year the Agency will designate each school as a Character Plus School that provides a program that meets the criteria and is approved by a committee as defined in the bill.	"A school district may provide a character education program...[It] must stress positive character traits, such as: courage; trustworthiness, including honesty, reliability, punctuality, and loyalty; integrity; respect and courtesy; responsibility, including accountability, diligence, perseverance, and self-control; fairness, including justice and freedom from prejudice; caring, including kindness, empathy, compassion, consideration, patience, generosity, and charity; good citizenship, including patriotism, concern for the common good and the community, and respect for authority and the law; and school pride" (Texas Education Code, Section 29.906).	Kelly Callaway, Director, Advanced Academics/Gifted Education, Division of Curriculum, Texas Education Agency, 1701 N. Utah	M	2004	Utah Code Annotated, Sections 53A-13-101.4 and 53A-13-109; HCR 7 of 2003; House Bill 339 of 2006	In 2002, the Utah General Session enacted Section 53A-13-101.4 of the Utah Code. This section mandated that Utah public schools be periodically reviewed to ensure that effective instruction in American history and government were taking place. In 2003, HCR 7 was passed to promote character and citizenship education in schools through an emphasis on teaching civic responsibility and respect for others. The Legislature also moved to recognize the Utah schools and education leaders whose teaching of civic responsibility and respect had brought honor to the state. In 2004, the Utah General Session enacted Utah Code, Section 53A-13-109, which defined civic and character education, and required both to be included in the K-12 social studies curriculum and universally taught in connection with regular school work. In 2006, House Bill 339 established the Utah Commission on Civic and Character Education. With $50,000 in appropriations for FY 2006-2007, the Commission promoted coalitions for public awareness and training regarding civic and character education.	"Through an integrated curriculum, students shall be taught...honesty, integrity, morality, civility, duty, honor, service, and obedience to law; respect for and an understanding of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitutions of the United States and of the State of Utah; Utah history, including territorial and preterritorial development to the present; the essentials and benefits of the free enterprise system; respect for parents, home, and family; the dignity and necessity of honest labor; and other skills, habits, and qualities of character which will promote an upright and desirable citizenry and better prepare students to recognize and accept responsibility for preserving and defending the blessings of liberty inherited from prior generations and secured by the constitution. Local school boards and school administrators may provide training, direction, and encouragement, as needed, to accomplish the intent and requirements of this section and to effectively emphasize Civic and Character Education in the course of regular instruction in the public school" (Utah Code Annotated, Section 53A-13-109).	Alan Griffin, Life Skills, Academic Service Learning Specialist, Utah State Office of Education, 250 East 500 South, Box 144200, Salt Lake City, UT 84114-4200 Tel (801) 538-7761 Fax (801) 538-7769 alan.griffin@schools.utah.gov; http://www.schools.utah.gov/curr/lifeskills/Char_Ed.htm	Penny Keith, Professional Development Director, State School of Character Coordinator, Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Center for Community of Caring, 1901 E. Virginia	M	1999	Code of Virginia, Sections 22.1-208.01, 22.1-201 and 22.1-202; House Bill 1498 of 2003 (Chapter 777)	In 1999, the Virginia General Assembly amended the Code of Virginia to require character education. The amendment required the teaching of values, including the inappropriateness of bullying. The Board of Education was required to establish criteria for character education and provide resources to school divisions. It was also allowed to award grants to school boards for innovative programs. In 2000, Section 22.1-201 of the Code of Virginia was amended to require that documents such as the Declaration of Independence, Constitution of the United States, Bill of Rights, the Virginia Statute of Religious Freedom and the Virginia Declaration of Rights be taught to students to increase knowledge of citizens' rights and responsibilities. In 2001, Section 22.1-202 of the Code of Virginia was amended to require that students receive instruction in the principles of the United States and Virginia flags and learn the Pledge of Allegiance. In 2003, House Bill 1498 modified the character education requirement to include Virginia's civic values (Article I, Virginia Constitution).	"The purpose of the character education program shall be to instill in students civic virtues and personal character traits so as to improve the learning environment, promote student achievement, reduce disciplinary problems, and develop civic-minded students of high character. Washington	E	1993	RCW 28A.150.210 (1993) and 28A.150.211 (1994)	In 1993, the State of Washington passed RCW 28A.150.210, which described the Basic Education Act. This act required the state of Washington to provide students with the opportunity to become responsible citizens, to contribute to their own economic well-being and to that of their families and communities, to explore and understand different perspectives, and to enjoy productive and satisfying lives. In 1994, Section 28A.150.211 was added to the Basic Education Act and considered character education an integral part of public education, but left the responsibility for implementation and assessment to local school boards.	"The legislature also recognizes that certain basic values and character traits are essential to individual liberty, fulfillment and happiness. Local communities have the responsibility for determining how these values and character traits are learned as determined by consensus at the local level. These values and traits include the importance of: honesty, integrity and trust; respect for self and others; responsibility for personal actions and commitments; self-discipline and moderation; diligence and a positive work ethic; respect for law and authority; healthy and positive behavior; family as the basis of society" (RCW28A.150.211). West Virginia	M	2001	1995 State School Act; House Bill 2208 of 2001 (amended West Virginia Code, Section 18-2-13); West Virginia Code, Section 18-2-9	Passed in 1995, the State School Act required the state department of education to develop a preventative discipline program consisting of a weekly character education discussion. In 2001, the West Virginia Legislature passed House Bill 2208 (amended West Virginia Code, Section 18-2-13) which required the state board to establish comprehensive character education into all aspects of school culture, school functions and existing curriculum. In addition, West Virginia Code, Section 18-2-9 requires that all students complete courses in civics, the U.S. Constitution, and national and state government.	"The state board shall require all public schools that operate from preschool to grade twelve to develop and integrate components of character development into their existing curriculum. The schools may incorporate such programs as "life skills", "responsible students", or any other program encompassing any of the following components: honesty; caring; citizenship; justice; fairness; respect; responsibility; voting; academic achievement; completing homework assignments; improving daily attendance; avoiding and resolving conflicts; alternatives to violence; contributing to an orderly positive school environment; participating in class; resisting social peer pressures to smoke, drink and use drugs; developing greater self-esteem and self-confidence; effectively coping with social anxiety; increasing knowledge of the immediate consequences of substance abuse; increasing knowledge of the consequences of ones actions; the corrupting influence and chance nature of gambling; and the value of decent, honest work" (West Virginia Code, Section 18-2-13).
